LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

I had originally written a letter from the editor stating, "For once, the QMHC will be on time". Obviously that was the wrong thing to write.

Thank you for all of your patience. Some of you already know why the QMHC is late, but the rest have had wonderful patience with me.

When the QMHC for May was nearly completed, the corona wire of the copier broke. After nearly 2 weeks that was fixed. However, during that week, we had to rush my mother into the hospital where she has remained since that time. Since mid-May, my routine has been working from 8:30 - 5:30-6:00, preparing supper and then going to the hospital until 9:30-10:00. During that time, I have had very little time to get the QMHC out of you. I apologize to you for that. That is also the reason why many letters have remained unanswered.

My mother remains in critical condition, so I am not sure when the next QMHC will be out. I am going to try to get them out on time, however, I don't want to make any promises. I have extended everybody's subscription by 4 months. However, if anybody wants a refund, I will send it to them. I want to continue to publish the QMHC and intend to continue if everyone will continue to be patient and bear with me.

I am cleaning up the study where I usually work in case my mother comes home. Therefore, I hope to get everybody's photos back to them.

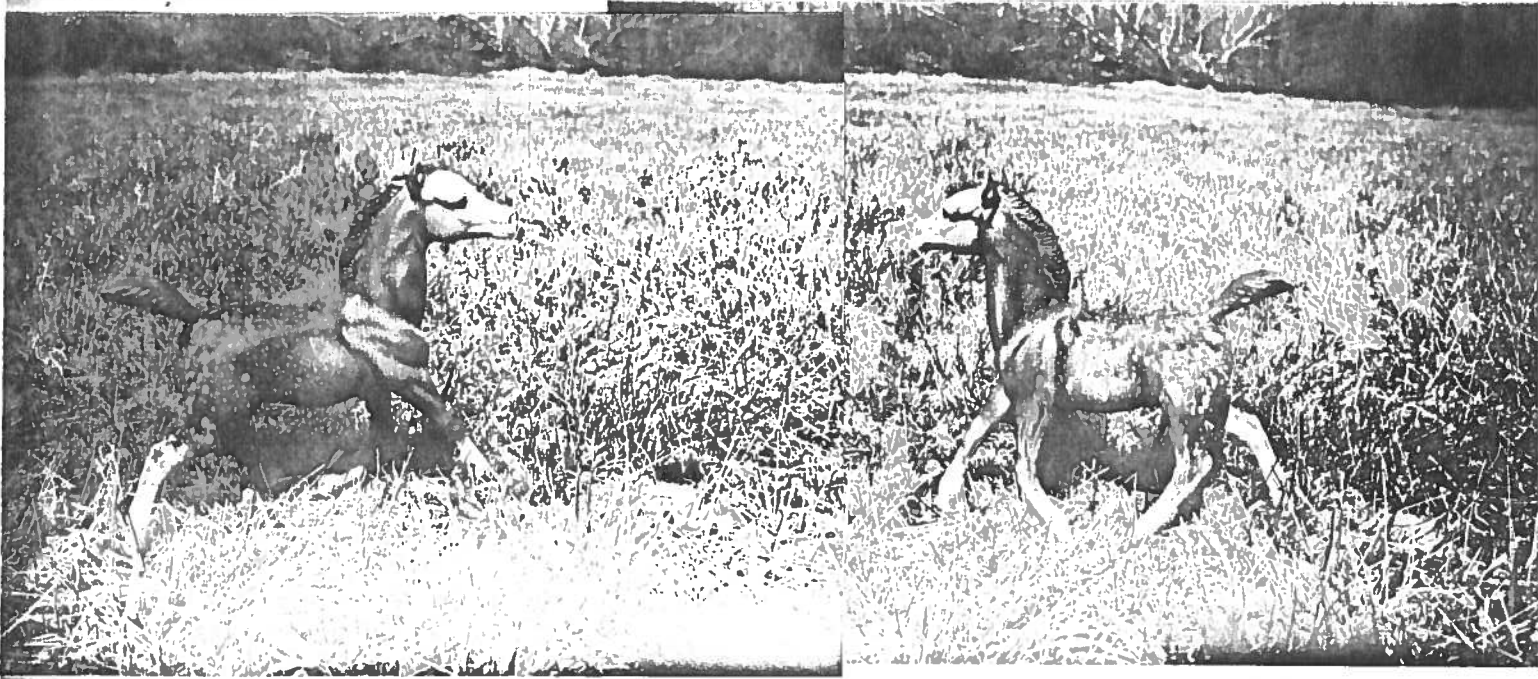

Advertisers will also receive credit or I will refund money, whatever you wish.

Thanks again for being so patient. I truly appreciate the support.

Sincerely,

ODDITY OF THE MONTH

Glossy All-dapple Gray Running Foal - model is brown-gray in color and dapple spots reach up through check on both sides.

METLOX, HORSES WITH STYLE

Heather Wells
Colleen Brown

POPPYTAIL, by METLOX, were made between the mid-50's to mid-60's. There were 24 modes, 7 of which were some type of harness molded models. They also came with carriages. They are made of highly glazed china and they are visually more stylistic than accurate..

The wagons are as follows:

020 610	Package Wagon	020 640	Doctor's Buggy
020 620	R.F.D. Mail Wagon	020 650	Victoria Wagon
020 630	Vanderbilt Sleigh	020 66-	Surrey

Opposite are the numbers of most of the models made, while below and following are photos of some of the various models.

PAINTS & PINTOS

Flashers of the Horse World

Although the paint and pinto ( the names are synonymous) are often considered the underdogs of horsedom, they were often prized by both the Indians and the cowboys. The Indians liked it because it had a natural camouflage (it didn't present a solid object in the desert), while the cowboys prized them because of their flashy color. They stood out in a crowd. Most registries, however, do not allow any spotted horses. For that reason, the pinto has often been relegated to the back of the farm for work only.

Other names used for pintos are: skewbald (brown & white-Britain and Eastern U.S.), Piebald (black and white), Calico Pony (western) and Indian Pony. They also often have one or two blue eyes, also called china eyes, glass eyes, walleyes, cotton eyes, and watch eyes (one). Paint originally was used to designate overo horses while pinto was used to designate tobiano horses, however, now the terms are used interchangeably.

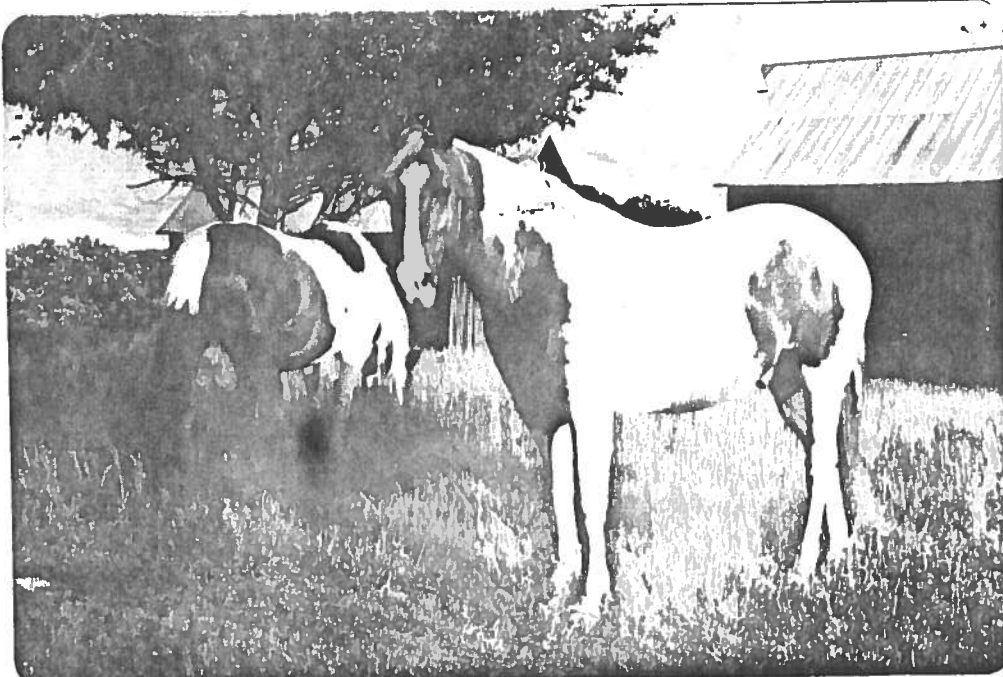

Two registries now exist for Pintos. One is the Pinto Horse Association which registers any pinto horse with good confirmation of whatever breed. The other is the American Paint Horse Association which was created to create a specific type of spotted horse from Thoroughbred or Quarter Horse Stock. (Yellow Mount is one of the founding sires of this registry. It must be at least 14 hands and not be a gaited horse.

The two patterns found in pintos are as follows:

Tobiano refers to a clean-cut pattern with delineated borders. Normal head markings. White dominates the dorsal or back area, dark covers the belly area. There may be a large dark spot or shield on the chest or front of the neck. They usually have brown eyes

Overo refers to a ragged pattern. Legs and back are often dark colored while abdomen has white. Often face is white and blue eyes are common. Roan is also often seen as patches and in the mane and tail. Legs are often dark colored.
